In the small village of Covadonga (Spain) there is an amazing underwater passage: Pozo Azul. With a 700 meters long first sump and more than 3.5 kilometers long second sump, Pozo Azul is one of the biggest underwater passages of Europe.

Now a group of British, Dutch and Spanish cave divers have decided to continue extending the line. Using advanced breathing apparatus, rebreathers, underwater vehicles and other innovative equipment, they are determined to go further than anyone... go beyond the limits.
